

A VOTER'S JOURNEY: FROM HOME TO THE BALLOT BOX

Comparing the experiences of the general population and groups who face barriers to participating in elections<sup>1</sup>

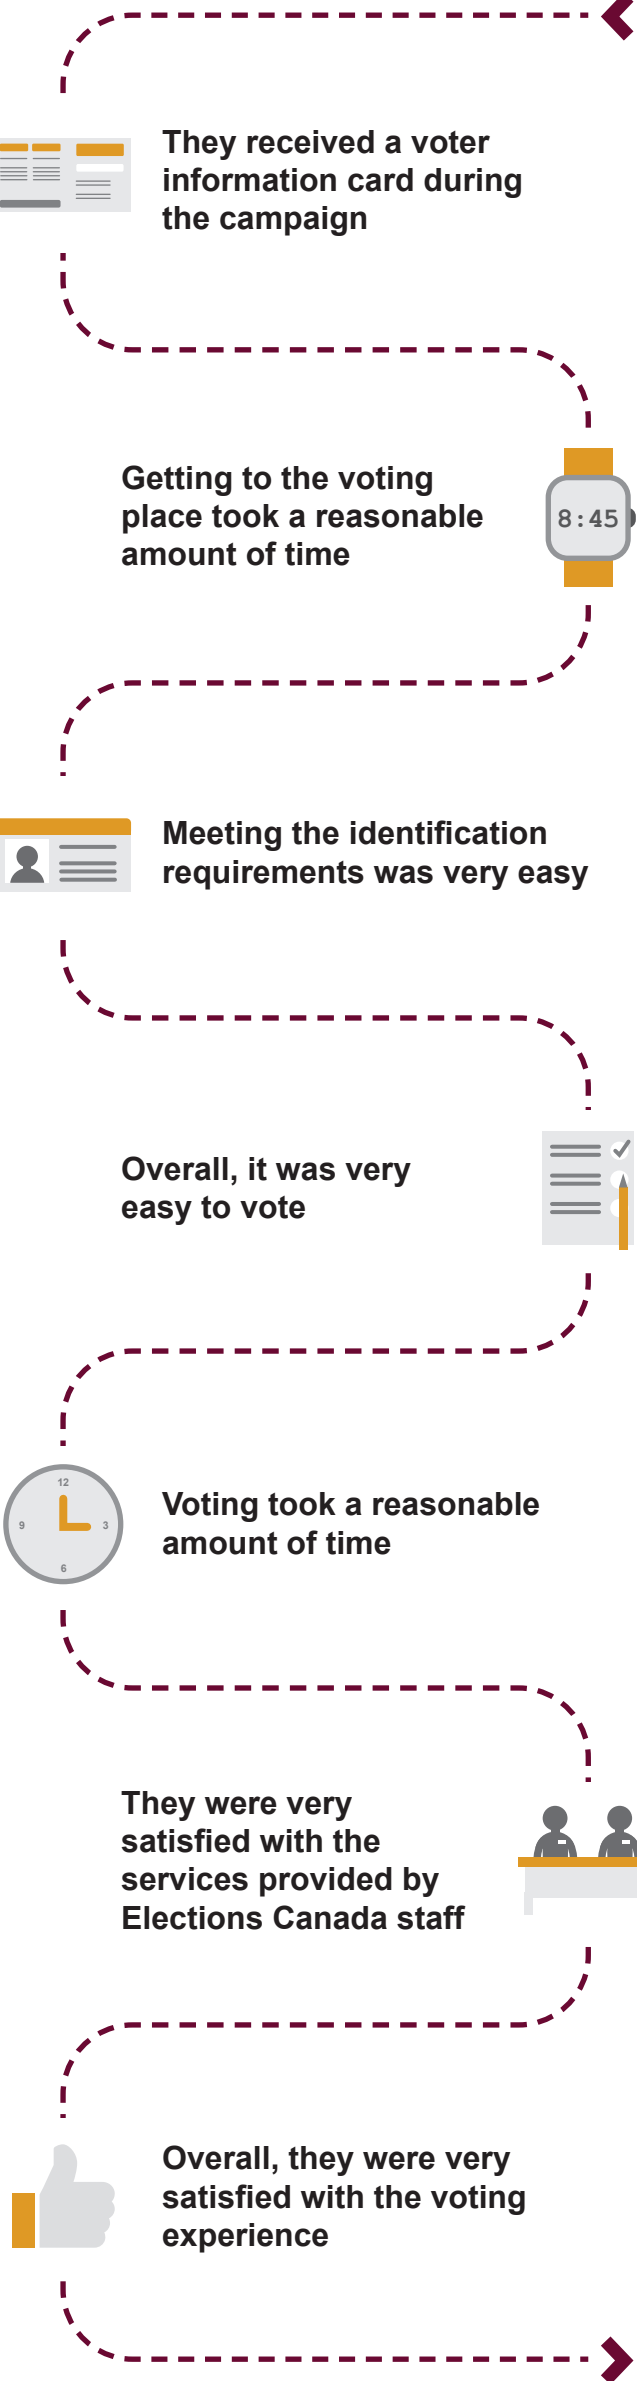

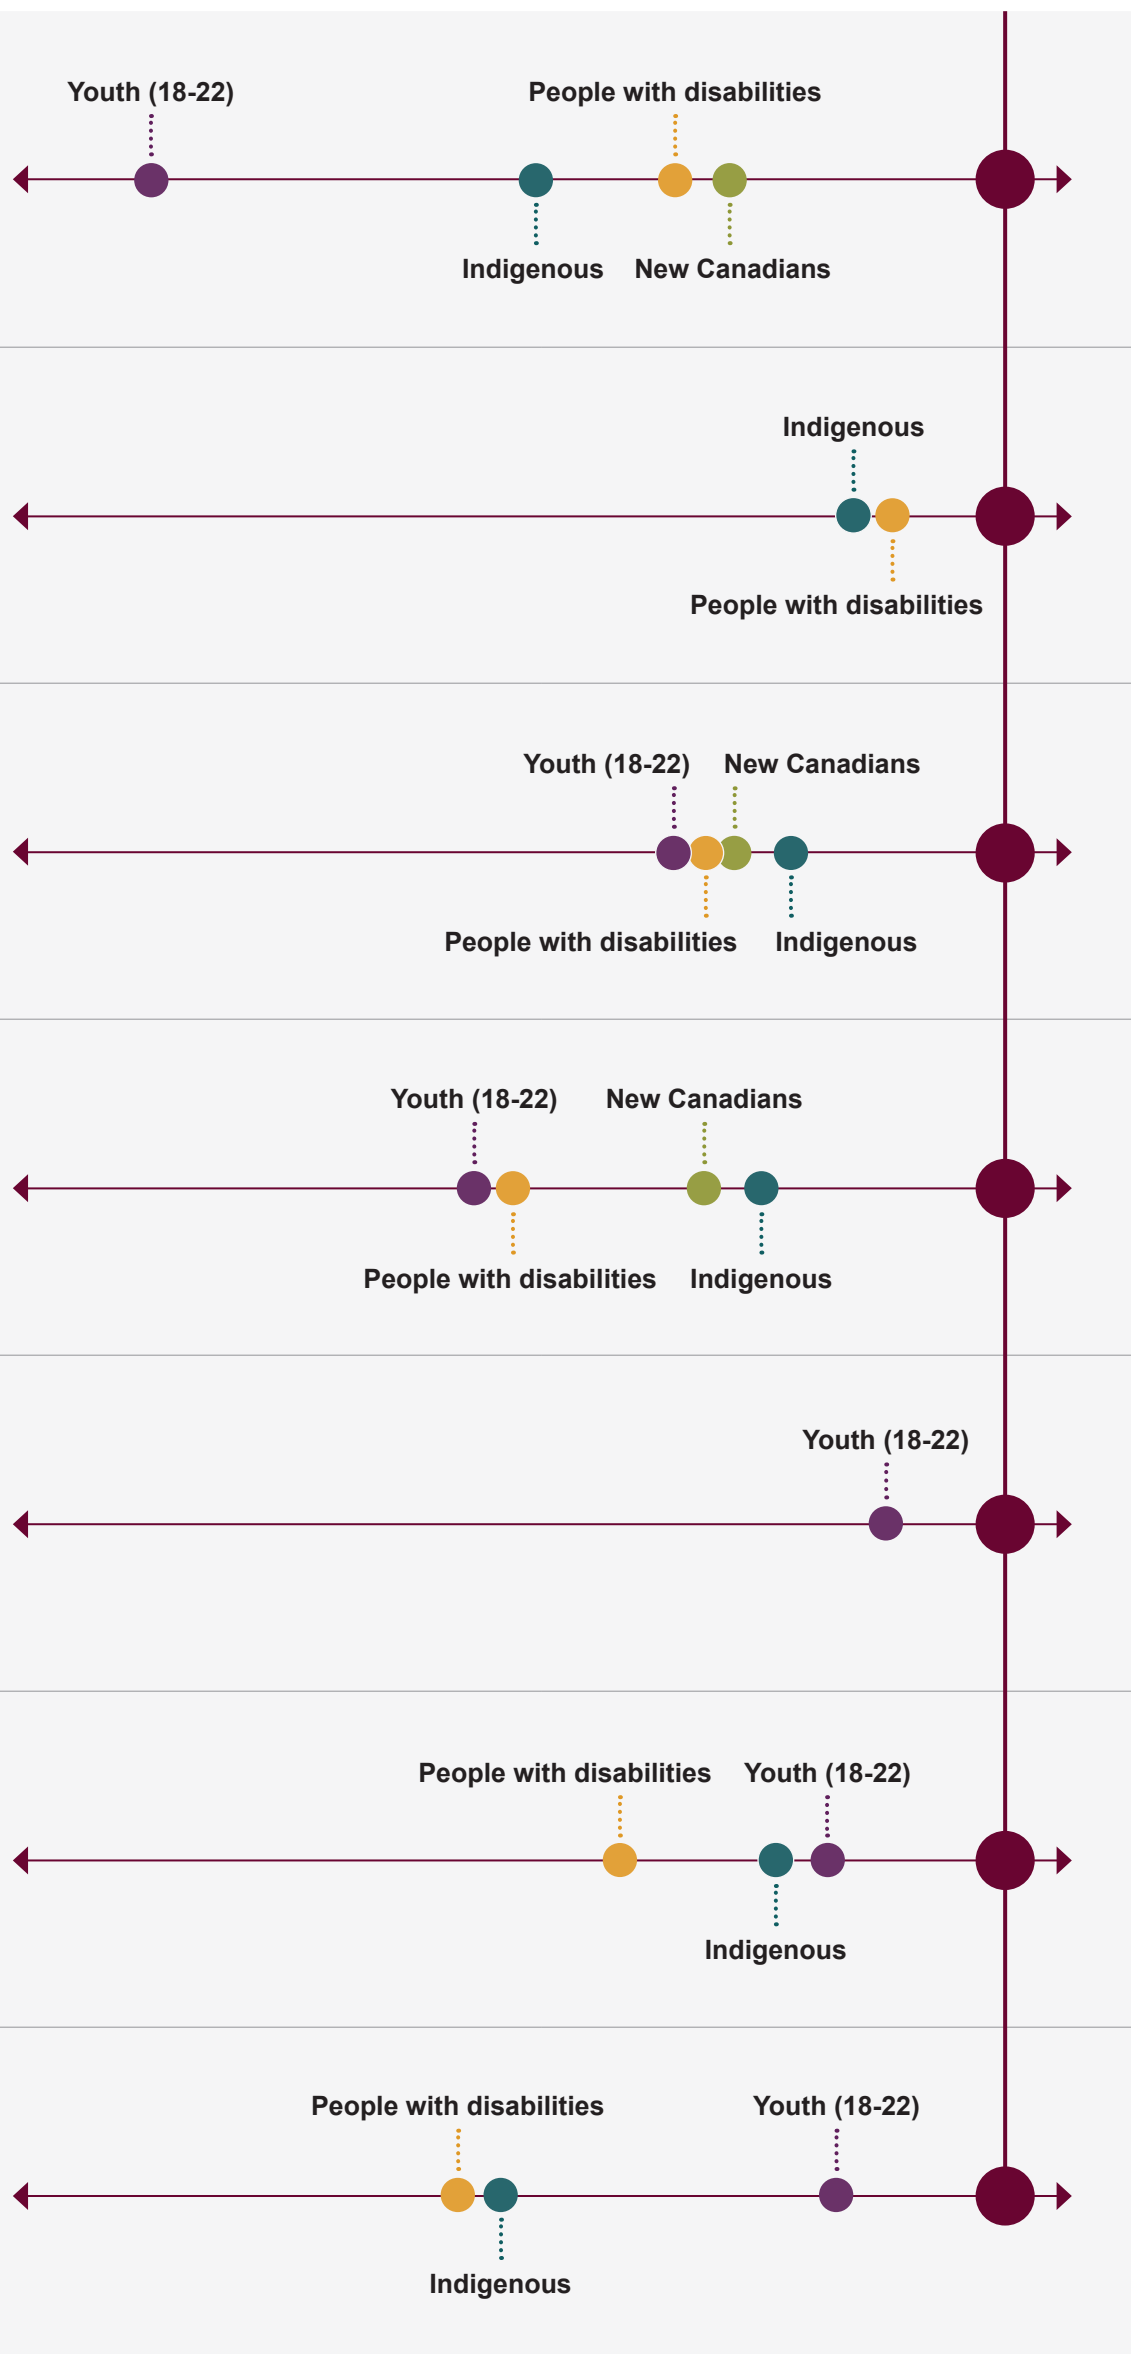

While the majority of voters had a very positive experience on voting day, some groups of voters were less likely to experience the same levels of satisfaction and ease.

● Indigenous
 ● New Canadians
 ● Youth (18-22)
 ● People with disabilities

GENERAL POPULATION

<sup>1</sup> For each step of the voter journey, subgroups are identified only if their experience differed significantly from that of the general population. If a subgroup is not shown, their experience was similar to that of the general population.

<sup>2</sup> Note that the general population scores do not equal 100% across all indicators; instead, they have been standardized to better show the relative difference between all groups.
